Re: Child and Youth Advocate Office 2023-2024 Annual Report

Dear Speaker,

Under my authority as set out in Section 24 of the Yukon Child and Youth Advocate Act, I am pleased to present you with Making Space for Children's Rights: 2023-2024 Annual Report. The document reports on the activities of the Child and Youth Advocate Office during the period April 1st, 2023 – March 31st, 2024. I am requesting a meeting with Members' Services Board to discuss the experiences and priorities of the Child and Youth Advocate Office.

Respectfully,

Annette King,
Yukon Child and Youth Advocate

ADVOCATE MESSAGE

At the Child and Youth Advocate Office, we like to shoot for the stars. We work tirelessly for children's rights and we aim high. It's written into our vision statement - we won't rest, back down, or stop our advocacy until we've achieved a world "that hears, includes, values, and protects the rights and voices of children and youth." Want to hear the exciting part? It's starting to work...and we're over the moon about it!

Consider this annual report a telescope of sorts - looking back over the past year to see how far we've come. We've started to see progress in many areas, especially when it comes to making space for youth. At times in the past it has seemed like the government is on a different planet when we've talked about children's rights, but we are excited to see adults recognizing the value in asking young people what they think, and considering the impacts of decisions on future generations. Young people continue to lead the way.

We have been impressed with the growing awareness of policy analysts and managers in all levels of the civil service who understand the importance of meaningfully considering the impacts on children in all that we do. Their passion to do better is inspiring and helps create a child rights-centered culture within Yukon government; accountability to the Territorial Youth Strategy and a commitment to implementation of Child Rights Impacts Assessments are just two examples of prioritizing youth interests. Yukon government departments have been responsive to requests for regular meetings with us to share about ongoing advocacy concerns. However, there is still a lot of work to do.

Lack of communication between teams, high turnover in Yukon government positions (of all levels), and muddled clarity on which issues are whose jurisdiction continue to be a frustrating reality in our individual advocacy work. This leads to a need to respond systemically.

We're heartened to see others in our community upholding and making space for children's rights and views. We received an invitation from the

First Nations Education Commission to collaborate with the Yukon First Nation Education Directorate on investigating systemic racism in Yukon education (p.14); a request from the Minister of Education to review the Department of Education's Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity policies (p.15); a Territorial Youth Collective (formerly Communities Building Youth Futures) presented a Territorial Youth Strategy to the government listing key priorities for Yukon youth (p.21). All these, plus more, make us feel affirmed and inspired to continue our work - there is intelligent life in all parts of this galaxy, and we're excited to keep working together for the betterment of our youth!

Our team has worked tirelessly to address the high volume of individual advocacy issues, the comprehensive systemic reviews, and we have integrated a new database, ensuring that data in our advocacy work is stored securely and efficiently. At the same time, we have had numerous engagements as part of reviewing and making recommendations for changes to the Child and Youth Advocate Act. We thank all those who have participated in our discussions on this important project; your insights help shape legislation that will further enable our efforts to champion young people.

So let's turn that telescope towards the future now, where we'll continue to persist, advocate, and fight for young people across this galaxy (but focusing on the Yukon) to have their rights respected, their voices heard, and their stories honoured. What kind of universe can young people lead us to when given the chance? I'll answer that with the encouraging words of an otherworldly, decidedly kid-friendly wiseman named Buzz Lightyear: "To infinity... and beyond!".

Annette King,
Yukon Child and Youth Advocate

PROGRESS TRACKING ON SYSTEMIC ADVOCACY ISSUES

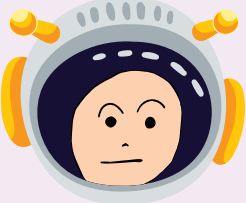

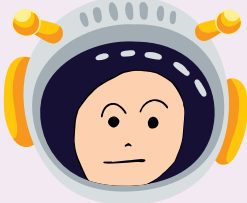

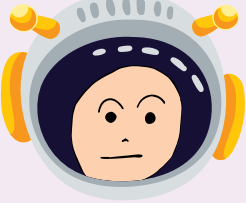

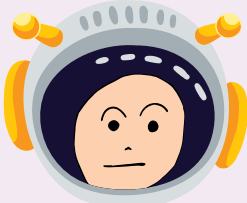

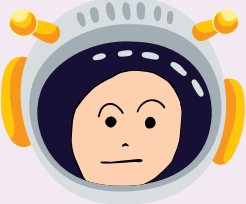

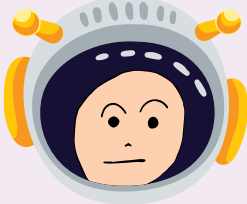

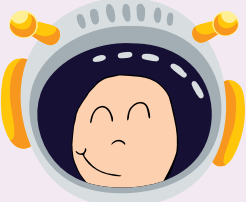

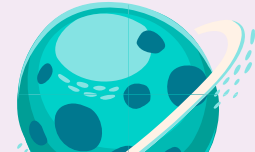

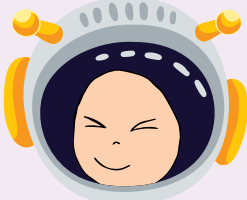

In the 2022/23 Annual Report YCAO identified tracking government responses to systemic recommendations as a priority for the year and committed to creating a simple and consistent tracking tool to hold government departments accountable.

Scale	Ratings indicates the degree to which the Department is implementing YCAO recommendations, which are likely to lead to more positive outcomes for children & youth.	Progress on Recommendation
	Not being implemented at this time. No children and youth are benefiting from this practice or activity.   	Not started (0) Recommendation rejected/no progress.
	Beginning and/or intermittent and inconsistent. Recommendation has been accepted. Discussions about or initial implementation of the practice, policy, strategy, or activity have taken place. There is a definite interest and organizational activities have begun. Few children and youth are involved or benefitting. The practice, policy, strategy, or activity is in the earliest implementation stages; progress is being made and plans are moving forward. The practice, policy, strategy, or activity may be implemented in some areas or in some cases, but not frequently or with consistency.	Some progress (1) Started but is not yet complete.
	Emerging. Concerted efforts are being made to fully implement the recommendation including practices, policies, strategies, or activities. Many children and youth are involved or benefitting. 	Significant progress (2) Extensive progress, but not yet complete.
	This recommendation is used to make decisions about needed services, changes in programs, plans and strategies, and is utilized in the Department's emerging, short-term and long-range planning efforts, changes to policy, procedures, practices or professional development. YCAO is seeing a reduction in individual advocacy issues in the area(s) affected by the recommendation and there is a reduction in the amount of time to resolve these issues. 	Fully implemented (3) Recommendation fully implemented. The full benefit may or may not have been realized yet.

PROGRESS TRACKING: SAFETY IN SCHOOLS

YCAO delivered on their 2022/23 commitment and provided the first application of the progress tracker, evaluating Yukon government's response to the recommendations provided in Responding to Sexualized Abuse in Yukon Schools: Review of Policies and Governmental Response.

REQUESTS FOR SYSTEMIC REVIEW

REVIEW OF SYSTEMIC RACISM IN YUKON SCHOOLS

With the support of Yukon First Nation Education Directorate (YFNED), YCAO has launched a review of systemic racism and discrimination in Yukon education.

The issue was first raised by the Chiefs Committee on Education (CCOE) who then directed YFNED to complete the review and made a formal request to the YCAO to provide individual and systemic advocacy for children and youth experiencing discrimination and racism. YCAO notified the Department of Education about the review in December 2023 and it was publicly announced at the YFNED conference in February 2024.

The goals of the review are to:

- ★ Look at how racism impacts Indigenous students and other students of colour.
- ★ Understand how students, parents, and communities experience racism.
- ★ See if students in Whitehorse and the communities experience the same type of racism.

Direct or Interpersonal Racism:

Actions between individuals that cause harm. This can look like racist name-calling, threats, jokes and stereotypes, and physical violence.

Systemic racism: Thoughts and actions that support an unequal system. This system benefits some and harms others, and is based on race, ethnicity, and culture. This can look like laws, policies, and institutions such as education, healthcare, or law enforcement.

Systemic Racism in Education:

An education system that prioritizes the needs and values of a colonial and Eurocentric society over other racial groups and cultures. This leads to poor outcomes in areas like:

- ★ Academic Success
- ★ Attendance
- ★ Discipline
- ★ Representation

I don't get to learn much about my culture. But I'd like to.

I see myself as an independent Indigenous youth... I'm extremely passionate about my culture and others, as it was my saving grace for success and well-being.

REVIEW OF THE SEXUAL ORIENTATION AND GENDER IDENTITY (SOGI) POLICY IN YUKON EDUCATION

On March 11th, 2024, the Minister of Education, the Honourable Jeanie McLean requested that YCAO conduct a comprehensive review of the Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity (SOGI) policy for Yukon public schools.

SOGI policies play a crucial role in fostering environments where children and youth of all sexual orientations, gender identities and expressions can thrive. The review by the YCAO aims to assess the effectiveness of the Department of Education's current SOGI policy in promoting and sustaining a supportive and accepting atmosphere within schools.

Through a child rights lens, the review will examine various aspects of SOGI policy, including their implementation and their impact on students' experiences. It seeks to identify strengths and areas for improvement to better support the diverse needs of children and youth across the education system.

CLOSE TO HOME

Through our individual and systemic advocacy work, YCAO has connected with a growing number of children in the territory with exceptional needs. Although the issue is widespread from K-12, YCAO is focusing on the immediate needs of children who are elementary school aged.

YCAO is deeply concerned about the lack of local comprehensive resources to adequately support children with complex needs. In many cases, these children are connected to a wide range of Yukon government departments and community organizations, and continue to face challenges accessing safety and stability, mental and physical wellness, and a meaningful education program. YCAO has observed a growing trend of elementary school children being denied access to full time learning environments, often due to neurodiversity and dysregulation resulting in difficult behaviours and complex learning challenges.

YCAO has identified four themes:

- ★ Assessment and treatment
- ★ Safety at school, at home and in the community
- ★ Educational programs
- ★ Supports for families

I can't control my body. I can't control
my brain.

It's really important that kids want to go [to treatment] because it can be traumatizing for the kids to be away from their loved ones and family because it can be emotional for them.

I feel rejected, like I'm a bad kid.

COMMUNITY SAFETY

Children and youth have the right to survive and develop in the best possible way. This includes growing up in a safe and nurturing community without fear of violence, harmful drugs, or exploitation. Over the past few years our office has seen an increase in calls related to community safety. These include issues involving substance use and overdoses, gang violence, sexualized violence, and violent public assaults (including incidents at schools).

YCAO notified the departments of Justice, Health and Social Services and Education on December 5th, 2023 about the concerns regarding community safety that we have heard from young people.

Presenting Issues for Children and Youth:

- ★ Violence in the communities
- ★ Violence at schools
- ★ Risk assessment and planning
- ★ Insufficient behavioural intervention and restorative response
- ★ Complex relationships between youth
- ★ Lack of collaboration between Yukon government departments

In January 2024, YCAO welcomed a Bachelor of Social Work practicum student from Yukon University to complete a project reviewing and comparing community safety models and how they might be integrated in a rural, remote and northern context.

I haven't heard from the school after the restorative conference. I don't know if it is safe there or if I am allowed back [at school]

I've learned how to take care of myself not by choice but by circumstance.

Every youth has knives, bear spray and weapons to protect themselves. If I don't carry them, I'm going to get killed.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE PODCAST

Alternatives should be offered when kids can't go to school

In March 2023 YCAO launched a 5 episode podcast revisiting the 2021 Review on School Attendance in the Yukon: What Is, What Could Be. The episodes looked at the themes from the report: Personal Factors, Safety in School, Belonging and Culture, Mental Health and Trauma, and Educational and Behavioural Supports.

School attendance continues to be a pervasive problem in the Yukon. In fact, attendance is once again the education issue where YCAO is seeing our highest number of individual advocacy cases. It is going to take a holistic and collaborative approach to address the underlying issues that lead to chronic absenteeism.

TERRITORIAL YOUTH COLLECTIVE & STRATEGY

VISION OF THE TERRITORIAL YOUTH COLLECTIVE: ALL YUKON YOUTH HAVE A SENSE OF BELONGING THROUGHOUT THE TERRITORY.

This means that youth feel empowered, have a positive sense of self and their futures, have mutually caring and fulfilling relationships, and feel connected to and supported by their family, community, and land.

The Territorial Youth Strategy (TYS) serves as a guiding document for decision-makers at all levels and in all sectors. It is a living document that is revised based on conversations at Annual Accountability Forums which take place as part of the annual Yukon Youth Summit. In 2024, YCAO is a signatory to the TYS.

TYS Priorities:

1. Basic Needs
2. Community Safety and Harm Reduction
3. Mental Wellness and Connections
4. Access to Learning and Education
5. Employment and Career Opportunities
6. Land and Stewardship

I don't know how to get the information I need to make decisions.

CHILD RIGHTS IMPACT ASSESSMENTS (CRIA)

A Child Rights Impact Assessment (CRIA) is a tool for translating the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child and the child's best interests into policy and practice to:

- ★ Improve public policy and contribute to better outcomes for children
- ★ Ensure potential impacts to children are predicted, monitored and mitigated
- ★ Consider short-term and long-term effects of policy on children
- ★ Apply research and evidence to analysis of decisions
- ★ Emphasize children's participation in decision-making
- ★ Provide an efficient process to verify that governments are meeting obligations to uphold children's rights

On September 19th and 20th, 2023, YCAO hosted our annual CRIA training. Participants from various levels of government and youth organizations joined students from the Porter Creek Secondary School Rainbow Room to discuss the impact of government policies on children's rights and to go through practical exercises that can be implemented to enhance their work.

In 2020, YCAO convened a CRIA Working Group for the Yukon. The CRIA working group has developed a primer, flowchart screening tool, and an analytical tool in partnership with UNICEF to use in policy and program development.

LEGISLATIVE REVIEW OF THE CHILD AND YOUTH ADVOCATE ACT (CYAA)

Why is the CYAA being reviewed?

- ★ The Act came into force in 2009 and is currently ten years overdue for review.
- ★ Many pieces of the legislation are outdated and require updating.

YCAO has continued to engage with youth, First Nations governments, service providers and families to develop an updated submission to the Members' Services Board, an all party committee of the Legislative Assembly responsible for reviewing the Act.

A promise means nothing if you can't keep it.
